List of Supervisors

2017
In the Uniting Church in Australia, the goal of supervision is understood as the continuing enhancement of ministry in a context of trust and openness by means of a relationship of mutual accountability that focuses on actual ministry experiences.

The Supervisors listed in this document have been recommended by UCA ministers in placement in the Synod of NSW/ACT. The information about each supervisor has been provided by the Supervisors themselves and all have agreed to be included. Ministers and leaders who are looking for supervision need to contact a potential Supervisor directly for more information and to negotiate an initial meeting.

It also includes a Supervision Covenant which needs to be completed and submitted to the Presbytery PRC.

| Supervisory Framework | I view supervision as a safe place where two people walk a journey together and at times struggle with issues that are difficult and sometimes unanswerable. It is a place where one is supported on the journey and where one can struggle or rest with the unanswerable issues if need be.

My approach is a reflective and companion and sometimes mentoring style. Perhaps somewhat eclectic in form.

I come from a trade background followed by 25 years in pastoral ministry with 15 of those involving various chaplaincy roles. |

| Supervisory Framework | I view supervision as
• an opportunity to take “time out” for intentional reflection on issues relating to one’s work
• in a supportive environment which offers an outside perspective
• to enhance personal and professional growth.
I am open to the use of creative media within Supervision for those who find that helpful. |

Supervisory Framework
Supervision is the gift of time, space and relationship that is made available to enhance the supervisee’s awareness of opportunities and challenges arising from ministry and life as that impacts on the practice of ministry. On this basis my approach is to encourage persons to take responsibility for their own learning and to assist in that by using a variety of techniques to prepare for and open up conversations during a supervision session. Recognising that people have different personalities and learning styles I am committed to attending to people as individuals and to adapt the style and content of sessions appropriately. My basic approach is conversational and gently enquiring while being open to the silences in which helpful insights mature.

Supervisory Framework
“You must have chaos in you to give birth to a dancing star” Nietzsche
Supervision gives a protected space for a person to reflect, question, analyse and critique their personal encounters or workplace issues so that a person can go away from the session affirmed in their approach or take away new questions to explore.

In the reflective model of pastoral supervision the deeper meaning of a situation is explored so that a person comes to see the possible underlying values being played out in the situation and find ways to work with these. This then deepens one’s own spirituality and calls a person forth to enjoy and delight in their own personal transformation and that of others as they travel together on the road to wholeness.

Yes, I am happy to do Skype with supervisee. I would have to negotiate about phone contact, but I could be persuaded.

Supervisory Framework

I come to supervision with 30 years of parish ministry experience, and a background in Spiritual direction. I think its important to reflect in supervision on the person of the ministry agent, as well as the tasks and the spiritual implications of all that the supervisee brings.

Qualifications

I have been supervising ministers for two years. I have completed the Synod supervision qualification, as well as a qualification to supervise spiritual directors. I have spent 30 years in parishes in the Uniting church in NSW, rural and urban. I hold a B.A. Dip.Ed, M. Div, M. Theol.

Supervisory Framework

Underpinning my practice is the belief that people’s experiences, particularly those that are uncomfortable and disorientating can be the basis for personal, emotional and spiritual learning and transformation. My understanding comes through personal experience and from studies in theology, supervisory practice, teaching theory, various nursing strands and science. I have a passion for teaching and supporting people to grow in personal awareness, facilitating their coming alive to insights and learning which enhances their professional and pastoral selves. I am enthusiastic about working with people who are keen to learn about their own practice, who desire personal and professional understanding, and who expect their supervisor to accompany them on that journey. I currently take pleasure working with practitioners from pastoral practice, pastoral management, the homelessness sector, education and nursing practice, either in individual or peer group supervision.

Supervisory Framework

With the aim of helping ministers to be better ministers, I seek to facilitate the growth and self-awareness of the individual to reach their best potential particularly within their vocation. It is my aim to provide a confidential context for a person to question, reflect upon or talk through significant or every day relationships and events within ministry. I seek to hold a supervisee accountable for their self-awareness, growth, actions and behaviour thereby encouraging them to become the best they can be as a ministry agent and as a person.

Supervisory Framework

I favour a reflective and narrative form of supervision offered in a safe, confidential environment, providing opportunities to enhance personal strengths and to engage with any concerns affecting ministry and pastoral relationships.

An early career in education, together with many years of listening to peoples’ personal stories, has taught me the value of intentional listening. Qualities of discernment and intuition also inform my professional supervision practice.

| Supervisory Framework |
| You live your life forward - You understand it backwards. (Kierkegaard)
- Supervision is a working alliance between two professionals where supervisees offer an account of their work, reflect on it, receive feedback and receive guidance if appropriate.
- The object of this alliance is to enable the supervisee to gain in ethical competency, confidence and creativity thereby ensuring the welfare and best quality-service for clients/others. (Inskipp and Proctor 2001) It is an opportunity to discuss:
- Difficult or emotionally charged clinical / professional encounters with others in order to explore your own feelings and reactions to your work, and
- How these emotions affect the care you provide. |
| GOAL | Providing more sensitive, empathetic care

Supervisory Framework

Supervision provides a great opportunity for learning and growth within a supportive, non-judgemental environment. It encourages self-reflection, transformational learning and both personal and professional development.

I bring an eclectic approach to supervision, drawing on a number of different models and tools to collaboratively support you to:

- reflect on workplace events and experiences at your own pace;
- grow in confidence and ethical competency;
- discover your strengths and professional identity;
- develop greater insights and workplace effectiveness;
- maximise your learning experiences from supervision.

Qualifications

I am an Accredited Mental Health Social Worker in private practice who has been providing professional supervision for approximately 11 years. I currently supervise school chaplains, social workers, students, other supervisors, as well as those in leadership positions within a church environment. I am a recognised supervisor with the Australasian Association of Supervisors (AAOS) and am also an accredited member of the Australian Association of Social Workers (AASW).

My qualifications include:
- Bachelor of Social Work (Hons)
- Advanced Diploma in Christian Counselling & Family Therapy
- Cert IV in Training and Assessment
- Graduate Certificate in Professional Supervision (Clinical)

Supervisory Framework

Outreaching with and caring for, people in the context of Christian community have specific demands and pitfalls. As clergy the work/life balance takes on a particularly demanding dimension in relating to family laity and church hierarchy. Supervisors help the supervisee to safely examine their ministry with parishioners and others outside the church highlighting affirmations and alternative possibilities. Theologising about God’s presence and spiritual dynamics in the
The ambiguity of life gives a framework within which Christian workers can reflect on ways in which the spirit of God is at work in very concrete and contemporary situations.

My style of supervising emphasises mutuality, creativity and nurture. I would hope that the supervisee will grow in their ability to supervise themselves between supervisory sessions and that the time spent together would be real and supportive. The self-disclosure of my own journey in times of struggle and success will contribute to the trust required in this important relationship. I have extensive library resources which I would be happy to share.

Apologetics and gender issues are interests of mine in which have done some research. I look forward to meeting those that would see their journey in ministry and humanity to be enhanced by this fellow traveller.

Experience & qualifications

Ordained in the Uniting Church in 1980 I have served four parishes – three in the hunter. Studying psychology at master’s level and experience as a chaplain at two psychiatric hospitals has given me practical experience and intellectual awareness of human dynamics. I have also had a year as trainer and counsellor for Lifeline. I have supervised Christian counsellors and ministers from various denominations. and am on the NSW Synod Committee for Counselling having helped the Assembly Committee to establish protocols for when accusations of abuse arise. I have trained over forty people in Clinical Pastoral Education over the past ten years and have lectured in courses in youth worship and supervision at the United Theological College and the Pastoral Care Institute.

At present I enjoy a diversity of ministries. Training and assessing Newcastle medical students in counselling and sexuality is very rewarding and I am also a work place counsellor for Converge International (previously ITIM). In that capacity I have been called in to debrief critical incidents as an employee assistance provider.

I am the Uniting Church Chaplain at John Hunter Hospital and am a Board Member of Spiritual Care Australia (previously Australian Health and Welfare Chaplains Association). I am a conjoint lecturer for the medical faculty of Newcastle University.

| Essentially the pattern I use is based on the Wellbeing of the supervisee. In this instance wellbeing as a person; wellbeing as a minister; and wellbeing of the relationship with God. I try to exercise active listening. I expect the supervisee to nominate issues that are operating for them. I don’t submit reports to presbytery unless I am asked for comments and with the agreement of the minister. Since retiring I have accepted payment usually equivalent to the casual preaching fee. I only accept payment if the supervisee is being reimbursed for their supervision by their placement. This is not often. |

| Supervisory Framework | My model of supervision is based on a strengths coaching model, seeking to help people to develop their skill-sets while also addressing areas of problematic functioning. I utilise a number of models from positive psychology, working in a collaborative manner and tend to be strategic and goal-oriented. However, I am also comfortable working with areas of dysfunction. |
| Experience & qualifications | I am a registered psychologist (clinical endorsement) and work in private practice. I am also involved in the psychological assessment of ordination candidates for a number of denominations in Sydney. I have lectured in pastoral care at a number of theological colleges and get to speak to a variety of church and community groups on subjects such as stress, mental health, relationships, and parenting. My most recent research (clinical masters) focused on burnout and depression in ministry staff (using the leadership data from the NCLS). I am currently supervising people working as counsellors as well as supporting a number of people involved in full-time ministry settings. |

| Supervisory Framework | I work from a model I first began developing 1984. The ideas can be found in my book, Story Whispering: An introduction to Biblical-Narrative Therapy (2013). It is a narrative model integrated with attachment theory. In the supervision my goal is to work respectfully with the story of the other person as they describe what it is they are doing in ministry. Together we look at the story as the container of the wisdom, and as a team, allow the story to teach us what directions ministry can take. A critical element in the method is to stay curious rather than irritated and to never try and ‘understand’ the story but let the story teach its own meaning. The willingness to stay ‘ignorant’ until the story reveals what needs to be known is another important element. A number of biblical narratives inform the method and give participants a framework within which to address issues; for example, the story of the exodus challenges participants to move in a ‘Mosaic’ way into mystery waiting for ‘quail to arrive’, rather than building ‘golden calf of certainty’ in their work; consequently, faith and mystery dominates over dogma. |

Experience & qualifications

I am a psychologist registered in Australia. I am a clinical member of the Australian and New Zealand Association for the Treatment of Sexual Abuse. I am clinically accredited with the New South Wales Child Sex Offender Counsellor’s Accreditation scheme to work with adults. I am an accredited supervisor with the Australian and New Zealand Association for Clinical Pastoral Education.

Prior to training as a psychologist I spent many years developing educational programs for families as part of my work as a parish minister. This included a significant amount of family support, mediating family conflict and addressing the stress of death and dying issues.

Supervisory Framework

Supervision provides the opportunity to reflect on pastoral practice and to develop insights into your ministry, greater awareness of the place of faith and values in your work.

19 July 2017
It also enables you to reflect on the social and cultural context in which you work, and to reflect theologically on your practice, how you relate to others in your ministry or workplace, and what you discover about yourself and the other. You set your own learning goals and we focus on those goals and your learning in your practice, enabling greater insights and effectiveness, greater understanding of your role and growth in spiritual and pastoral identity. This is done in a non-judgemental atmosphere. It is a form of transformative education.

Supervisory Framework
Supervision gives us an opportunity to reflect upon our practice, in this to become more aware of what we noticed at the edges of our practice, to wonder, to grow in our awareness of self and others, to explore our theology. Through supervision we are enabled to develop our capacity to connect with others.

Qualifications
For the past 18 years I have managed the CPE Centre at St Vincent’s Hospital, Sydney. In this role I have conducted CPE programs and provided education seminars and supervision to people working in Pastoral / Spiritual Care. I am an accredited Level 2 CPE Supervisor with the NSW College of Clinical Pastoral Education. I have a Masters in Counselling and a Masters of Arts(Specialising in Pastoral Supervision). I completed a Bachelor of Theology in 1996.

Supervisory Framework
I aim to facilitate reflection upon ministry practice by the supervisee. I am open to the supervisee presenting reflections upon ministry practice in whatever medium is most helpful to them.

Qualifications
Formerly a registered nurse responsible for supervising undergraduate and graduate nurses in clinical settings. Supervised a number of field education/intern placements. UCA Authorised Supervisor
Hold a Diploma in Individuals, Couples and Family Therapy (UniFam)

Supervisory Framework

I work from a strengths-based person-centred model of supervision. I do so from within my own grounding as a Christian person while respecting the spiritual stance of the supervisee. My supervisory framework is invitational offering the opportunity to engage in reflective practice that includes and explores theological reflection from the supervisee’s perspective and their unique identity as a pastoral person.

Supervision would within an agreed supervisory relationship and focus on the professional and personal learning goals of the supervisee. I would also allow for reflection on the context and circumstances of their present life and ministry.

The aim of my supervision is to provide a safe space within which the supervisee can grow as a person in ministry and develop skills, knowledge and attitudes that support healthy ministry. Supervision can be transformative.

Qualifications

I am an ordained Baptist minister presently employed as the Coordinating Chaplain in the Central Coast Local Health District where I have worked for the past four years. Before my current ministry I was an Army Chaplain for thirty years.

I have extensive experience and training in coordination, mentoring and supervising of clergy from broad denominational and multi-faith backgrounds. Presently I am 81 points into a 108 point MA (Pastoral Supervision) programme. I am able to provide suitable references if required.
